Pastor Steve & wife Tami

This coming Sunday is Game Day Sunday, the only thing that should change is our apparel! We should have that same zeal for Christ as always, an excitement to be with other believers as we all worship God! This is a great time to invite guests that may be interested in the concept of game day!! Our guest speaker that we know as "Coach Mitchell" has impacted thousands of lives in our Community. Be sure to get the word out because we know that a lot of people will want to come hear his testimony.

May God continue to bless you and our church family!

All things in Christ!

YOUTH & EDUCATION MINISTRY:

youthpastor@firstbaptistquitman.com

Rev. Nick Hampton
Associate Minister of Youth & Education

Living life on mission is something that Jesus modeled for us very clearly in His everyday life. It's also something that I want our students to model as they learn and grow in their faith.

This past week our student ministry partnered with another ministry in the church and packed 75 backpacks for kids that they don't even know and may never meet. It was truly amazing to watch them become so focused on something that wouldn't benefit them at all and to watch the way they selflessly served our church.

They amazed me even still as we prepared for the Fall Festival and I saw them working as hard as they could for the people of our church, so the Fall Festival would be a success. It's this type of lifestyle that Jesus modeled and should be the lifestyle we should strive to lead every day. Who can you serve today?

Serving Him,
Pastor Nick

Ben's Pen!

Rev. Ben Adkison
Associate Minister of Music & Worship

In my study of Scripture, I've found at least five distinct concepts that Scripture attaches to worship: exaltation, expression, encounter, event, and every day.

Each one reflects a unique way in which God intends for us to use and understand the reality behind this word. While not exhaustive, this list gives us a basic foundation for how we should view worship. Not every passage we'll look at in this series includes the word "worship," but that's simply because the Bible employs a variety of ways to refer to it.

Worship is first and foremost exaltation. The Hebrew and Greek words in the Bible that we translate as "worship" most often communicate an attitude of reverence, submission, and homage. In the act of worship, we are by definition acknowledging that someone or something else is above us and worthy of our affection, attention and adoration.

Biblical worship, then, involves exalting God above all other objects. This can be done directly, as in Exodus 15:2, where the Israelites declared, "The LORD is my strength and my song, and he has become my salvation; this is my God, and I will praise him, my father's God, and I will exalt him" (ESV). We see here, as in many other passages, that worship is about proclaiming the greatness of God's attributes, the splendor of His works, and His absolute claim on our lives.

Other times, our non-verbal actions and responses exalt God and reflect the essence of worship. We're told that Job fell to the ground and worshiped God when he heard that his home, possessions, and family had been destroyed (Job 1:21) By his actions he was exalting God's sovereignty and wisdom above his own understanding. When Mary anointed Jesus' feet with costly perfume in John 12 she modeled worship by exalting her love for the Savior above the world's monetary value system.

At its heart, worship involves the exaltation of all that God is and does. Let's be purposefully found worshipping God out of a heart full of gratitude and admiration. I'm in! how about you?

Worshipping together!!
Bro. Ben
